Each part can give a maximum of 16 points

This examination consists of three parts, each with a focus on phenomena related to political science. These are part 1, 2 and 3 of the examination. The first should treat the welfare state, the second and third is phenomena of your own choosing.

All are to be obtained from the course literature and / or lectures / seminar and should have a relation to Scandinavia / The Nordic Countries. You choose whether the phenomenon should be taken from this region as a whole or from one or a few of the countries included.

For each of the three phenomena, treat the following sections:

- Describe the phenomenon.
- Describe how the phenomenon has occurred.
- Try to explain why it has occurred.
- Describe how it may differ from other parts of the world.
- Try to explain why these possible differences exists.
- Give your analysis of future development for the phenomenon and motivate your predictions.

Good luck!
