

Conditions of payment

Students for whom tuition fees apply are admitted to Mid Sweden University on a condition. This means that the student must have paid the entire tuition fee to the university on a certain date.

The tuition fee is paid per semester and in advance.

A student who is admitted to a study programme pays the tuition fee per semester, i.e. 30 credits or normal pace of study, in advance. For the study programmes 60 credits per semester are awarded. If a student chooses to study more than 60 credits per year, a tuition fee is charged also for the exceeding credits.

Students enrolled for single courses pay a tuition fee related to the credits awarded for the course, in advance.

The tuition fee applies to the courses the student is enrolled in, regardless of the result. A student who has not completed his or her course may complete the course later without paying an additional tuition fee.

A student who does not complete his or her studies at a normal pace of study has the right to complete the studies without paying an additional tuition fee. A higher pace of study does not lead to a reimbursement of the tuition fee.

A student obliged to pay a tuition fee, who takes part in exchange studies within the framework of the education, must pay the tuition fee to Mid Sweden University for the time of the exchange, per semester and in advance.

Should the tuition fee not be paid by the specified due date, the university will suspend the student.
